Halloweentown

Who doesn't love Halloweentown? A Disney original that started in 1998, the actors and actresses didn't think anything big would come of this little Halloween movie but later came three other movies into the franchise.

My favorite character was Aggie who was played by Debbie Reynolds who recently passed away last December after her daughter Carrie Fisher passed away. Aggie was always the fun going grandma, which reminded me a lot of my own grandma and I loved how she tried to bring the magic back into her family. Then, of course, her living in Halloweentown where all the magic is.

Rest in Peace Debbie Reynolds

My other favorite character was Benny a fun loving taxi driving Skeleton in Halloweentown who helps the kids get to Aggie's house after they follow her to Halloweentown.

2. Nightmare Before Christmas

This movie was a newer one to me (I know late to the party) but I loved it! Jack and his ghost dog have to be hands down my favorite characters. Then the "This is Halloween" song its epic and I also found an amazing cover (if you don't like hard rock it is not for you).

This movie is just epic and I feel stupid for not watching it sooner. Jack is a very dynamic character and I love that he wanted something new and nice, I found it very sweet. I also loved how Sally cared for him and tried to help not make any bad choices but still tried to help.

3. Hocus Pocus

A classic right? And yet again another Disney film. When I was younger I honestly didn't like the movie as much because it scared me, but I grew to love it. Winifred, Mary, and Sarah were the three that scared me the most and now that I'm older I find their quotes hilariously relatable. Anyone else?

Also, the songs in the movie I find more catchy now and harder to get out of my head.

My favorite character is Binx, the black cat. I found his story sad yet happy (especially when he met Dani and reunites with his sister) and I have always had a soft spot for black cats and cats in general.
